

Copy protection does not exist. A hundred different ways will be found to defeat it. It will do nothing to deter the true pirates, but will only aggravate normal people who want to record their shows. Copy protection is about providing the "illusion" of protection from theft and piracy, but it does no such thing. Unlike individual people, broadcasting companies are corporations and are required to do whatever the government wants. Just order them to broadcast, don't capitulate to threats. You must use be wary of reality when searching for the best solutions in this digital age.

Sincerely,
Jeremy Zimmerman
